Consent for vaccination for minors younger than 18: Vaccine providers are responsible for obtaining appropriate consent from patients before administering vaccines. For minors younger than 18 years of age, consent is obtained from a legally authorized representative on behalf of the child (usually a parent or guardian) by completing a written consent form that the minor can bring to their vaccination appointment. The parent or guardian does not need to go with the minor to their vaccination appointment to give consent. Currently, people younger than 18 can only get the Pfizer vaccine.
